on availability of adequate resources with the State Governments and the priority accorded to the irrigation projects by them.

(c) and (d) Lag of a few years between the introduction of irrigation and its full utilisation is unavoidable mainly due to the following reasons: (1) farmers take time to construct the field channels and prepare the land for irrigated farming, (2) switch over from rainfed agriculture to irrigated agriculture involves a major change in agricultural techniques which farmers take time to master, (3) adopting appropriate cropping pattern as per project design is uncertain and (4) poor water management practices at farm level. No official estimate has been made in respect of likely gap between creation and utilisation of irrigation potential by the end of the Ninth Five Year Plan as figures in respect of creation/utilisation of potential during the first two years of the Ninth Plan period have not been finalised by the Planning Commission.

The issue of further raising of the dam is subjudice in the Hon'ble Supreme Court.
